

Angelo Phillips was born and raised in Englewood located on the south side of Chicago. He attended Harper High School, graduated in 2005 with high honors, From there he was accepted into the University of Kansas, where he had a double major in Communication Studies and Sociology with a minor in Business Administration & Management. Upon his graduation in 2010, He worked for Jewel Osco as a Customer Service Rep., and also as an Assistant Manager at Realty & Mortgage Co. He now holds a job working for Ford Motor Co.

Angelo has recently enrolled back into college to further his education in the Medical field. He dreams of one day becoming one of America's top 100 surgeons!

Angelo recently volunteered with All of Us & You Youth Center. He came about speaking to children about there future, and directions in life. He was asked to get more involved, and one day just started speaking to small groups. He has a passion to lead, teach, a passion to share his struggle as a young black African American. One who has change the name of Englewood from being a disgrace, or the ghetto to saying YES I CAN, YES I DID!

Angelo has joined A.O.U.N.U as a Managing Director and a Male figure mentor.
